A short walk in the woods can restore our attention span, make us more hopeful and compassionate, and improve our mood.

~ Douglas W. Tallamy in Nature's Best Hope

The Rolling Ridge Conservancy stewards a gem of protected land nestled between the Appalachian Trail on the Blue Ridge to the east and the Shenandoah River to the west. Our mission is to protect, preserve, and nurture this entrusted wilderness and ensure that human interactions with the land are sustainable, respectful, inspiring, and inclusive now and for generations to come. A volunteer board of trustees ensures that these 1500 acres are preserved through conservation easements and nurtured by thoughtful, effective stewardship and respectful use.

JOIN US AND GET INVOLVED

Find out what's happening at Rolling Ridge. Check out the website. Read the newsletter. Get on our contact list. Join the community of folks who visit, volunteer, and support this beautiful wilderness that pileated woodpeckers, spotted salamanders, deer, foxes, screech owls, poplars, pawpaws, trillium, bluebells, butterflies, spiders, box turtles and chickadees call "home."

VISIT

Come all ye hikers, mountain bikers, birders, & runners!

We have seven+ miles of trails open to the public most of the year. Check our website for trail maps and trail closure days during hunting season. Parking is available on gravel Mission Rd - please sign in at the kiosk.

Suggested donation: $5/visit

VOLUNTEER

We humans can have a positive impact on nature.

We can take time to honor earth's gifts by giving back as much as we receive. On volunteer days we work together to build water bars to protect the trails from soil erosion, plant native trees, shrubs and understory plants to restore biodiversity, and tackle invasive species.

To volunteer, write to info@rollingridgeconservancy.org

GIVE

How much is a walk in the forest worth?

With generous financial support, we can nurture biodiversity, build resilience, teach and learn about ecologically healthy niches, and safeguard a sacred haven where humans and wild kin can flourish together. To give, visit www.rollingridgeconservancy.org, send a check to 671 FLOC Way, Harpers Ferry, WV 25425, or PayPal with QR code.
